From 'couch potato' to Comrades Marathon podium finisher, British runner shares his life-changing story

STEVEN Way has gone from an overweight "couch potato" to a proud thirdplace finisher in the punishing Comrades Marathon.

The Witness sports editor Carl Peters asked the 43-year-old British runner about his interesting journey.

Q: How did you find your 2018 Comrades experience?

A: I can honestly say it was one of the best days of my life! Since last year's race, all I have thought about was coming back to race again and it more than lived up to expectations.

I was really happy to be toging the start line in great shape, both physically and mentally, so it was a great position to be in.

My initial plan was to try and stay with the pack of "favourites" but, after around 30 kilometres, I realised that I was pushing too hard to stav with them and it would prove costly in the latter stages if I continued at that effort level.

From that point on I just ran my own race, and managed to maintain a really consistent pace all the way until the end, which meant that I was able to pick quite a few people off in the last 20 kilometres and make my way through the field.

I'd actually lost count of how many people I had passed, so I crossed the finish line thinking I was in fifth place, and it wasn't until Nedbank team manager Nick Bester told me I was actually in third that I realised I'd made the podium! A very special moment for me.

Q: How was it in relation to the previous race?

A: 2017 was actually my first Comrades, so this was my first down run attempt.

Although run on the same course, the two races are so different as you need so much more leg speed on the down run if you are going to make it into the top 10. My two results would suggest that I'm better on the down run (I came ninth last year), but I was definitely fitter this year, so it's hard to say how much of my improvement came from that and how much from me being better suited to the down run course.

I guess we will find out next year when I have my second attempt at the up run! Q: What's the way forward for you? A: 2019 Comrades! Now I'm not as scared of the course, I'm looking forward to being a little more aggressive on my approach to the up run. I can't wait to running?

In the meantime, I will probably run the IAU 100 km World Championship in Croatia in September, as it is still gives me plenty of time to recover from that and then begin my Comrades training at the end of the year.

Q: Tell us about your past experiences in the sport, and that major weight loss of yours?

get back there.

A: Up until the age of 33, I took part in no sports at all. I was very overweight (over 100 kg compared to the 65 kg I am now) and was very unhealthy, being a smoker and drinker as well.

Q: When, and how, did you start

A: Running was the sport that I turned to when I realised that I needed to sort my life out at age 33. My blood pressure was very high and I needed to start doing something that would help me to quit smoking and also assist me in losing weight. I was very lucky as, when I started running, even as an overweight smoker I to Comrades. day, I ran just under 3 900 km, which found I could jog for a decent amount was a very consistent phase of training of time without having to stop (obviousfor me. Quite a few of those kilometres ly a lot slower than I do now, though!) This meant that I was able to improve quickly, and also burn a lot of calories, with my new favourite activity, which led to very quick weight loss.

Within around nine months I had food where I enjoy take-away foods and also have sweets and ice-cream. I've almanaged to lose around 25 kg in weight and also run a 2:35 marathon in London. ways had a very sweet tooth!

Q: What is your exercise routine like,

A: I generally run twice a day, and average around 200 km a week when I'm in my heaviest phase of training in the build-up

This year, between January 1 and race and the impact on your family?

Q: Who coaches you?

A: I've never actually had a coach, and have been self-coached for all 10 years I've been running. I read a lot of running books and take ideas and advice from others, but I always like to have the final say in how my training is structured.

are run on a treadmill, though, as I find it easier to simulate the hills and heat of Comrades on it rather than the cold

As well as my running, I also do quite a lot of pilates, which is great for keeping my core strong and lowering the risk of

As I don't have any children, and my wife works quite long hours, I tend to have all my running done and the dinner on the table for when she gets in from

Q: What is your full-time job, and

A: I actually work part-time for UK Athletics, processing race results for all UK road and trail races and uploading them into a central database. It's a perfect job for a runner as I get to work from home and I can also choose what time of day

I do my hours, which proves to be very useful when you want to go out for a

Q: Tell us more about that huge weight loss, and do you still crave

A: Although I lost most of my weight

very early in my running career, I still have to be very careful with what I eat

as I seem to have a very low metabolism and can put on weight very easily, even when running 200 km a week! I still crave all the unhealthy food I used to eat but I just try and be good when I'm in the three-four months before my target injuries.

Q: What's your diet like?

A: When I'm in full training I just try to eat a balanced healthy diet, with lots of fruit, vegetables, dairy and meat.

I'm very much of the opinion that people can overcomplicate their diet looking for the secret answer to running faster whereas really we just need to make sure we are sensibly fuelled and keep the processed foods to a minimum. That's not to say I still don't treat myself to the odd Magnum ice-cream even when I'm in serious training!

Q: How has running changed you? A: I'm actually a completely different person to the man I was 10 years ago. I have passion, drive and I get up each day excited about what it will bring. This is all thanks to running, which has not only made me a physically healthier person, but it has also made me a happier, more confident man as well. The only thing that has not changed in this time is my relationship with my wife. It appears that she still loves me, no matter what I look like or do, and I will forever be thankful for her support and companionship!

Q: What advice do you have for aspiring runners?

A: Consistency! People tend to over complicate running, looking for the secret answer to make them faster, whereas all they really need is consistent training year after year and a bit of patience. It's taken me 70 000 km, and 10 years, to make me the runner I am today.

Q: Your thoughts on South Africa on the whole, as well as Comrades?

A: The Comrades, in my opinion, is the best race on the planet by a long way, and there is no better way to experience South Africa than on race day as the whole country appears to get behind the race and there is a fantastic atmosphere of goodwill and support everywhere you

I was so impressed with South Africa last year that I brought my wife with me to this year's race, and we enjoyed a further week's holiday after the race to enjoy your country's hospitality ... we had a fantastic time, so thank you all!

SA golfers head to Germany and U.S.

CARL PETERS

AFTER the U.S. Open claimed the spotlight last week, including complaints about the course in New York, several South African golfers will be trying their luck at the BMW International Open in Germany and Travelers Championship in the United States this week.

A hefty group of "Saffers" who are in the field at the Gut Laerchenhof Golf Club in the German town of Pulheim today includes Christiaan Bezuidenhout, Richard Sterne, Brandon Stone, Haydn Porteous and the veteran Ernie Els.

Britain's Tommy Fleetwood is the bookmakers' favourite for the European Tour event, coming off a runner-up position at the U.S. Open at the controversial Shinnecock Hills Golf Course. The winner on Sunday pockets

€2 000 000 (R31 594 474). Across the Atlantic, the TPC

River Highlands in Cromwell, Connecticut, is home to the Travelers Championship which offers $7 000 000 (R95 497 500) to the winner.

Carrying the South African flag there are Tyrone van Aswegen, Rory Sabbatini and Retief Goosen in a strong field headed by back-to-back U.S. Open champion Brooks Koepka and a very hungry Jordan Spieth.

Koepka and Spieth are behind Dustin Johnson, Justin Thomas and Justin Rose in the top five players in the updated world rankings.

The top 10 South Africans on the ladder are Louis Oosthuizen, Branden Grace, Charl Schwartzel, Dylan Frittelli, George Coetzee, Dean Burmester, Shaun Norris, Darren Fichardt, Erik van Rooyen and Sabbatini.
